

Emerging Leaders Program

Hi, Boss / Supervisor!

I want to tell you about YPAL's Emerging Leaders Program and how my participation in the Spring 2021 session will bring our company value this year.

About the Program

The Emerging Leaders Program is a leadership development program for professionals across Greater Louisville. The program features personal interactions with community leaders – a key selling point. Classes focus on building self-awareness, emotional intelligence, leadership, management, communication within a team, and presentation skills.

Value to Our Company

- Highlight our company's brand to 20-30 young professionals
- Opportunity to interview community leaders
- Network and make connections across multiple industries
- Strengthen our team – when one of us gets better, our team's capacity grows
- We can show off our company's commitment to employee growth

About the Facilitator

Lenae Price, President and Founder of Mindset Collaborative, has 15 years of experience operating in fast-paced environments and coaching colleagues and team members through complex challenges and interpersonal issues. With a background in psychology, emotional intelligence, and communication, she successfully collaborates with top-level executives, legislators, community representatives, and specialists in most major industries. Lenae is a trained coach and facilitator with a performance background and a proven track record from Tennessee to New York.

Cost

Lenae will facilitate 5 of the 7 classes. That is a $5,000 value that YPAL is offering for the exclusive price of only $425. The program cost includes program materials, assessment and a book. This program will be held virtually, via Zoom.

Time Commitment

The total time commitment over the three-month course is about 50 hours. Around 22 hours in the classroom, 10-12 hours reading and taking the leadership assessments, and 15 hours on the group project. All mandatory classes will take place virtually.
